

Our Practice

In today's increasingly interdependent global economy, complex international transactions involving multiple parties from diverse business cultures are common.

Owing to the prevalence of such international contractual arrangements and dealings, one can expect that cross-border disputes have become increasingly complex and multifarious. Representing clients successfully through these proceedings, while ensuring that their rights and interests are promoted and safeguarded pending arbitration, is the focus and pride of CNP's Arbitration Team.

CNP's Arbitration Team, standing as an integral branch of its Dispute Resolution Practice Group (DRPG), has extensive experience in handling a wide range of arbitral matters under the rules of major international arbitration institutions such as the International Chamber of Commerce (ICC), the Singapore International Arbitration Centre (SIAC), United Nations Commission on International Trade Law (UNCITRAL) and Kuala Lumpur Regional Centre For Arbitration (KLCA).

Our Arbitration Team has represented clients in the semiconductor, computing, construction, aviation and telecommunication industries, among others, and has been involved in all aspects of both international and domestic arbitration.

Our clients receive assistance, representation, and advice at all phases of the arbitral process, including advice on drafting of arbitration clauses, pre-arbitration negotiations, selection and appointment of arbitrators and qualified technical experts, preparation of evidence, matters relating to forensic evidence and electronic discovery, actual representation before arbitral proceedings, enforcement of arbitral awards across Asia including challenges and appeals of such awards.

CNP's Arbitration Team has also represented clients before the High Court of Singapore to prosecute applications for interim measures in support of arbitration.
